SOMETHING FOR THE POLICE. - One evening last week, a gentleman residing in the vicinity of the Northern Liberties, while about to enter his house, perceived that the back gate was open, and supposing that it had been left so by some of the family, proceeded in that direction in order to shut it. On his approach, he perceived two men running from the stable, and as he was unarmed and the night quite dark, he retreated back with the intention of ealling the watchmen. After an hour's ineffectual search for one, the gentleman returned, and on examining the stable, found in it a hatchet, a large piece of iron, and a few burnt matches. Their motives were evidently bad, either burglary or arson, and as several complaints are made from the same neighborhood of similar suspicious goings on, we hope that the police will keep a strict look out. The very fact that while honest peo. le are asleep, seoundrels and villains are prowling about with bad intentions,

THE FARTE OF SIVA .- Much indignation has been expressed by numbers of our citizens, at the non-fulfilment by the Fakir of Siva, of his magnificent promises, and they do not hesitate to declare that the "whole concern is a cominstances, which go far to corroborate the general opinion on the subject. Great excitement and hubbub was caused by the circumstance, trivial as it may appear, but the lecturer was eventually allowed to go on. However, it will be a caution for future itinerant 1 seturers, if they happen to deliver forth in the sister city of Alexandria, to be cautious how they address their audience-they have slippery ground to travel over.

STEAM FLOUR MILL .- A new steam flour mill, of unusual size, is at present being erected driven by a steam engine of two hundred and fifty horse power. It is said that it will grind 800 barrels of flour per day, and when finished, mill of the kind in the United States. The Alexandria Gazette gives the following account

"The mill, built of brick of the best and most durable materials, state roof, and fire proof, is situated on the strand, at the foot of Duke street. It fronts on the Potomac river one hundred and twenty-two feet-the main building being eighty feet deep-and the engine room thirty-two-making a total depth of one hundred and twelve feet. It is six stories high, and the roof seventy-seven feet above high water mark, or seventy-three feet from the first floor. It has twelve run of burr mill stones, and a splendid steam engine of two hundred and fifty horse power. The mill is capable of turning out eight hundred barrels of floar per day, and of consuming, per day four thousand bushels of wheat. Attached to the mill is an elevator, for taking grain from the holds of vessels, and carrying it directly into the building. Large vessels can be loaded directly at the door of the mill. A wharf has been constructed on the north side of the building, on which a switch from the track of the railroad on Union street will be laid-so that grain from the ears will be brought, also, directly to the mill.

This establishment is the largest steam flour mill in the United States-and second only in extent to the Gallego Mills in Richmond. A Conscientions Juron. -On Saturday, before the trial of the negro, Gilbert Custis, came on, just as the District Attorney was about to explain the particulars of the charge, one of the jurors very conscientionsly objected to his trying the case, on the pleathat he knew nothing about it, and on account of this scruple, which no one can object to, he was allowed to leave the jury box, and another juror sworn in his place. The only objection to this indulgence is that the whole jury might have put forward the same plea, with the same scruples of conscience, as they could not in most cases be cognizant of the circumstances before they were brought before them.

DEMOCRATIC,-It was noticed on Saturday evening, at the Fakir of Sive's entertainment at Old Fellows' Hall, that the democratic principle was carried out to its fullest extent in tobacco smoking. The ticket taker at the door was busy puffing his eigar, while on his duties. The usher in attendance to preserve order and decorum was likewise similarly decorated, and one of the managers indulged in the same luxury before the audience. Truly this is carrying the principles of equality and independence, &c., to its aeme of perfection.

BALTIMORE CORRESPONDENCE.

BALTIMORE, March 11-10 P. M. Death has been doing his work recently and the term of two years shall be allowed to among our aged and venerated citizens. Today, our highly esteemed and well known townsman, Fielding Lucas, Esq., yielded up his spirit to Him who gave it, at the ripe old in Alexandria, having twelve runs of burrs, age of seventy-seven. Mr. Lucas was one amongst the oldest inhabitants of Baltimore He had been for many years extensively enwhich will be shortly, will be the largest flour gaged in the book business. Rev. Mr. Williams, the reported "Dauphin' or legitimate heir, through the Bourbon line, to the throne of France, preached to-day in St. Paul's Church. He had quite a large audience. The gist of his discourse consisted of an appeal, in behalf of the Indians, and his object to raise money for the purpose of building a church for the tribe where he has been ministering. Quite a handsome sum was subscribed.

He is the guest of Dr. Wyat. I learn that the Maryland House of Delegates, prior to its adjournment, passed a bill authorizing the payment of $500 to the Hon. Henry May, for legal services rendered in the case of Robert Swan, charged with the murder of William Sprigg. Mr. May, on hearing of the fact, wrote a letter to the Senate, declining to accept The Senate, however, rejected his refusal upon the ground that he had not been sufficiently paid, but the bill did not pass. Mrs. Mowatt had another brilliant house at Charles street last night. It was filled with beauty and fashion. She played to admiration. Amongst the audience I saw Mr. Ritchie, her intended husband. She looked lovely in and invigorated like a Spring morning, then your the extreme, and I am not surprised that beauty, grace, and intelligence, combining such exquisite attraction should captivate a

The Front street opens to-morrow night with a grand equestrian company. Old Holliday is being done up in superb style. When completed it will be the neatest. most comfortable theatre in the country. I fear, however, that a difficulty which seems to be in the way of giving a clear title to the company who purchased it some time ago may produce trouble and delay its opening. The Sunday Despatch appeared to-day with a slight alteration in its name, and a new figure head. It is now called the "Weekly Despatch." You will be rejoiced, for the sake of its proprieters to learn, that its prospects of decided dry Business, and knowing that I can, and detersuccess are highly flattering. The subscription list, I am told, has already run up to over three thousand in the city, besides many in the country. Business men are beginning to discover its advantages as an advertising medium, and a large share of patronage may be seen in its columns. It is an excellent journal-well filled with the news and choice reading matter. There is no reason why it may not very soon reach a circulation of ten to fifteen thousand. LOWER CALIFORNIA.

Our dates from Ensenada are to January 27. About the 20th, Walker addressed a proclamation to his men preparatory to the march for Sonora, exhorting them to follow him to rescue the people from the tyranny of the Mexican government and the atrocities of the Apaches. On the 24th forty-five men left his camp against his will. The two parties came near having an open battle, and several officers actually ordered his artillerymen to fire

The fortyfive men arrived at San Francisco, and report that the food is of the caarsest kind, that there is no pay save Sonora scrip, and that private property is taken without ceremony. Troops and vessels were on their way to that part of Mazatlan, and the inhabitants of Lower California were said to be enthusiastically eager to beat back the fillibusters.

Its kindred locks are lying too, Cold, cold within the sile at grave; And this is all that's left us now, 'Tis all that we could save. From off his noble brow we sheared it, When death had placed his signet there; And sacred do we hold this relie, This little lock of Willie's hair.

This little lock shining tress, It bids a thousand memories start; Tis all that's left of loveliness. And I will bind it to my heart. 'Tis a memento of the past, That brings to mind his lovely form Too sweet, too beautiful to last, Too fair to buffet wind or storm.
